Essay prompt: In his famous "Funeral Oration from the Peloponnesian War," Pericles urged his fellow Athenian citizens that, "Our public men have, besides politics, their private affairs to attend to, and our ordinary citizens, though occupied with the pursuits of industry, are still fair judges of public matters; for, unlike any other nation, regarding him who takes no part in these duties not as unambitious but as useless." Do you agree or disagree that those who choose not to participate in democratic affairs should be considered "not as unambitious but useless?" Why or why not?
